

A photograph of DPM Gan Kim Yong, an elderly man with glasses and a white polo shirt, leaning over a table to assist two young children in painting. The children are focused on their work, with one holding a paintbrush to their face. The table is covered with various art supplies, including paint containers, brushes, and partially completed drawings. The scene is set in a well-lit room, likely a community center or school, capturing a moment of intergenerational connection and creative activity.
